GALENA'S CHRIS WILLIAMS WINS NATIONAL OFFICE

Galena High School senior to represent 250,000 members worldwide

Chicago, IL—Nevada Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) member Christopher Williams of Galena High School was elected FBLA Western Region National Vice President at the National Leadership Conference in Chicago, Illinois and will help lead the 250,000 members of Future Business Leaders of America during the coming year.

During his campaign in Chicago, Chris campaigned to "Sail to Success" on a platform with four main points. Chris sought to bring unity to the Western Region, create a membership report, increase communication between national officers and members, and better utilize Professional Division members. Chris represented his home state of Nevada with pride and honor as he worked with local members, voting delegates and state leaders to listen to the challenges they face and develop ideas to more effectively serve FBLA's members and advisers.

"I'm extremely excited for the opportunities that lay ahead of this organization, and I am even more excited that I now have the ability to put my skills to the test to make FBLA more stimulating for its quarter of a million members across the nation," said Chris.

In addition to his term as a national officer, Chris will also serve as Nevada FBLA's Executive Vice President during the coming year. Chris has been an FBLA member for four years and is in his third term as a state leader for Nevada FBLA. Students like Chris allow adults to be encouraged about the future of America's youth and hopefully for an even brighter future. Chris believes "You may never know the lives you'll touch, but keep reaching, because when you do, you will be rewarded with the humble notion that your efforts make a difference."
